1. Course purpose

Focusing on a migration and rescue at sea and in a land context. The CMR course will deepen the participant's knowledge and understanding of the mandates and modus operandi of parties involved in this kind of operation.

The Course is focusing on the opportunities and sensitivities that are inherently related to interaction and information sharing in this operational context, which requires interaction between civil-military-police/border control organisations.

The participant's will gain knowledge of the tools available in order to improve situational awareness, to facilitate information sharing and to effectively coordinate more effectively with external actors, as appropriate.

As the course progresses, participants will in a simulation exercise be exposed to the practical challenges on how to enable information exchange, establish and maintain a meaningful coordination relation, ranging from co-existence to cooperation, with NATO, United Nations, European Union and NGOs.

Previous SWEDINT CMR courses were UN orientated; CMR 1 (2019) is a pilot course, and a new course in its own right, which for the first time is focused on the NATO philosophy, doctrine and unity of effort.
